ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE.

Ends Life's Fitful Fever With a Plunge in the River.

Saturday afternoon a young white woman was seen standing upon a raft of saw logs tied up to the west bank of the river, between the railroad bridge and the mouth of Devil's Hollow. Mr. Jas. Graves passed up stream in a boat while she stood there and asked if she wanted to be set across the river, but she said no and he rowed on. Joe Ware, the well-known colored man, known as Joe Moore, was fishing a short distance below, and saw the woman, as soon as Mr. Graves left, slip off her skirt, remove her shoes hat and belt, lay them down and walk into the water, disappearing almost instantly and he thinks went under the raft. Mr. Graves also saw her go in and gave the alarm and in a few minutes quite a crowd had gathered. The body was recovered in a short time and taken to the undertaking establishment of Messrs. Dehoney & Graham, where an inquest was held that evening, when the body was identified as that of Effie Conley, who came to this city several weeks ago from Georgetown. The jury returned a verdict that she came to her death by drowning with suicidal intent. Coroner Dehoney telegraphed to Georgetown and her brother-in-law came down Sunday morning and had the remains buried in the cemetery.

Received the Jewels.

Right Eminent Sir Knights Jacob Swigert, James M. Saffell and J. W. Pruett, Past Grand Commanders of the Grand Commandery of Kentucky, Knights Templar, have each received an elegant Past Grand Commander's jewel ordered to be presented to them by the Grand Commandery at its session in Bowling Green last May. The jewels are of heavy gold, in the shape of a Maltese cross, enameled in black, in the center the coat of arms of Kentucky, surrounded by a laurel wreath of green gold and is suspended by a purple ribbon from a gold bar pin, bearing the name of the owner, stating that it was presented by the Grand Commandery of Kentucky and giving the year during which he served as Grand Commander. The jewels were sent to the recipients by Grand Commander S. H. Stone, of Richmond, accompanied by a letter to each. The gifts are highly prized by the gentlemen and will be handed down to their children as heirlooms.

Will Now Have a Chance.

The members of one of the Lexington military companies are dissatisfied at the award of the flag to the McCreary Guards over them at the recent encampment at Henderson, and have been doing the baby act through the papers, saying their officers were going to resign on account of the injustice. To settle the question as to whether any partiality was shown his company, Capt. Noel Gaines has challenged the Lexington boys to drill for a wager of $500 to $400. Now

NEW YORK,
Aug. 24, 1895.

Hale and wife, Owensboro, Ky.; Mrs. Powers and daughter, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mr. W. A. Bowers, Worcester, Mass.; Rev. G. H. Carter, D. D., Gainesville, Ga.; Rev. S. Y. Jamison, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., N. C.; Miss Bedford, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss East, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. S. P. Dismukes, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. S. L. Hutchinson, Harrisburg, Pa.; George H. P. Cale, M. D., N. C.; Rev. R. E. L. Ayler, Va.; Rev. J. W. Lynch, Danville, Ky.; Mr. F. Strick, Boston, Mass.; Rev. C. Wayland, Lisk, Michigan; Rev. J. M. Betts, Asheville, N. C.

It is a select and congenial party. Our ship is of the twin screw pattern, 8,000 tons burden and otherwise first class in all her appointments. We are to land in London after being at sea eight days. We look for a fine time.

W. C. TAYLOR.

Cleaned Up the Lexingtons.

Pen Merchant, Pat Downing and Frank Barrett went to Midway Friday of last week and played with the Midway club against the Lexingtons, winning the game for Midway by a score of 8 to 5. Merchant pitched and the Lexington boys could do nothing with his delivery, and he had a long string of strike-outs to his credit. The Frankfort boys made five of the eight scores credited to the Midways and when the game was over could have had the town for the asking.

The Militia at Home.

The McCreary Guards returned Monday evening from Henderson, where they have been in camp for the past two weeks with the other companies of the Second regiment, bringing with them the flag won in the competitive drill. Notwithstanding a drizzling rain was falling when the train came in, the Second Regiment Band and a large crowd were at the station to welcome and accompany them to the armory. The boys came home in good health and spirits and left a good record behind them having been first in everything—drill, neatness of their quarters and deportment—and received the praise of the Regular Army officers present at the camp for their soldierly qualities. In fact the reputation of the town did not suffer at their hands, but was nobly upheld—not a man of the company being confined in the guard house for misconduct while they were gone.

To Cleanse the System.

Effectually yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, to dispel headaches, colds or fevers use Syrup of Figs.

Lane In Jail Here.

Information having reached the County Judge of Woodford Tuesday night that a mob had gathered at Nicholasville for the purpose of going to Versailles, taking W. N. Lane from jail and hanging him for the murder of James Rodenbaugh and the dangerous wounding of his father, H. C. Rodenbaugh, the sheriff and two of his deputies immediately hustled Lane into a vehicle and hurried him off to this city for safe-keeping, arriving here about two o'clock Wednesday morning.

In order to disguise Lane and prevent his recognition by any members of the mob whom they might meet on the road, he was dressed in women's clothes by the sheriff and his deputies.

Col. H. C. Rodenbaugh, one of Lane's victims, who has been making a gallant fight for life ever since he was shot, is very much worse, blood poison having set up and his death is only a matter of a few days. Lane will doubtless remain in jail here until the next term of court in Versailles.

Camping on the Creek.

A merry party of young people from the Woodlake neighborhood have been in camp near Knight's bridge on the Peaks Mill pike for the past week and have enjoyed their outing to the fullest extent, fishing and having a good time generally. Some of those composing the party are Mr. Houston Wood and wife, Miss Wood, Misses Fannie T. and Bessie Lewis, Miss Wilson, Miss Frances Wallace, of Kansas City, Missouri; Miss Ethel Smith, of Springfield, Illinois; Mr. Stewart Wood, and others.

Probable Short Term.

The term of the Circuit Court which will be commenced in this city on Monday week promises to be a short one, as there are only two criminal cases on the docket and only about one hundred civil ones, most of which will be disposed of speedily.

The Speaking Tuesday Evening.

Messrs. H. Clay Elkin and Wood. G. Dunlap, of Lexington, addressed the Log Cabin Republican Club at the Court House Tuesday evening in the interest of the Republican State ticket, and notwithstanding the extremely hot weather a large crowd was out to hear them and remained to the close.

Knew Is Business.

A newspaper correspondent at Middletown, N. Y., announces in a dispatch that shortly after the return of Hiram Hornbeck, penitent prodigal son, a thunderstorm arose and lightning killed a calf on the farm where Hiram's parents resided, hit the family Bible, opened it at the fifteenth chapter of Luke and marked the twenty-third verse, which reads as follows: "And bring hither the fatted calf and kill it, and let us be merry." There was a thunderbolt that was thoroughly consistent with its duties.

After Acute Bronchitis CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D. D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

The Teacher's Concert.

The following notice of the concert given at the Opera House for the benefit of the teacher's library Thursday evening, August 22nd, we inadvertently omitted from last week's issue:

To Miss Lucy Pattie, our efficient County Superintendent, the audience was indebted for the very enjoyable evening. Each number was most creditably rendered. Seldom do we hear so sweet a voice as that of Miss Mary Pattie, of Richmond, Ky., which showed most careful training and cultivation, and a manner so far from affectation.

Master George Smith's violin solo, "Scene de Ballet," was greatly enjoyed by all present. His friends are very much gratified at the progress he has made since he last appeared before a Frankfort audience.

The piano solo by Miss Clara Buckley was a bright, sparkling piece, very well rendered indeed. The male quartette by Messrs. Robt. and John Arnold, Jones and Porter was heartily enjoyed.

Our people are so well acquainted with the ability of both Messrs. Frank Bull and Louis Harris in their specialties that further mention is unnecessary.

Mr. Frank Hutchison furnished his usual amount of enjoyment in his comic song, while the Mozart Mandolin and Guitar Club rendered very sweet music indeed. To Prof. Wayland Graham, accompanist, much praise is due for the assistance he so graciously gave on the occasion.

Jumped From the Bridge.

A denizen of Gas House alley known as "Irish Net" tanked up on red liquor Thursday afternoon, went out on the railroad bridge to about the middle, climbed over the railing and jumped into the river. In her descent her skirts became inflated with air and held her head above the water until Pat. Hunt, Jr., and George Turner, who were at work on a raft near Wakefield's mill, could pull out to her in a boat and take her off the river. She gave an excuse for her rash act that she had a great deal of trouble and thought that the best way to end it.

Mrs. John N. Crutcher is slowly improving from her recent illness.

It would be a good idea for our policemen to take a stroll, once or twice a month at least, over our streets in the evening--that is if we are really a part of Frankfort and entitled to police protection.

Quite a crowd of young men and half-grown boys make a practice of congregating at the west end of the railroad bridge in the evening, and having a gay time. They should not forget that this is a public passway, and should be too gentlemanly to use obscene and profane language, which are so offensive to ladies and others passing that way. "A word to the wise, &c." Otherwise the police may have to interview some of them.

Miss Mary Waggener Crutcher left yesterday for Anchorage to be one of a house party at Mrs. Dr. Wm. Cheatham's.

Mrs. Dr. James C. Ely, of the North Side, is spending the heated term with Mrs. W. McKee Hardie, on Kentucky Avenue.

Mr. W. Todd Crutcher's little boy, John N., Jr., has been quite sick with summer complaint. It is now hoped that the worst is past, and the bright little fellow will soon be all right again.

The Waco Artesia says of the wedding:

"There was a peculiar sweetness which underlay the wedding ceremony of Miss Mae Moore and Mr. Loraine Rogers on Thursday morning, a drinking of the cup of joy as it were amid only relatives, a stepping across the threshold of one life into the happiness of another, across the threshold of the girlhood home to that prepared by a fond lover anticipating the welcome of his bonny bride. The ceremony occurred at seven o'clock in the presence of relatives only, and immediately the departure was made for a few days in San Antonio. The Rev. Galvin, assisted by Dr. Burson, conducted the ceremony. Mr. Charles Irvine was the groom's best man, the bride being without a maid."

FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT

Entered at the post-office at Frankfort, Kentucky, as second-class matter.

GEO. A. LEWIS, Editor and Pub.

FRANKFORT, AUGUST 21, 1895.

A Coop de Malin.

On Monday night the chicken coop at the ROUNDABOUT residence on Second street, was raided, though on'y one chicken was taken, the coop and the back gate being left open so that the remaining chickens were roaming about in the garden and the alley the next morning. Tuesday night the thief returned and took two more chickens, again leaving the coop and gate open when he departed. Wednesday night we concluded to take a hand in the fun, and when the shades of night began to gather we were seated by a convenient window, from which the coop was in full view, awaiting developments. The light had scarcely been extinguished in the kitchen when the latch clicked, the gate slowly opened and a very small negro boy entered. Giving him time to reach the coop, we leaned out of the window and said: "Now move and I will kill you!" Did he move? Well, yes, just a little bit. Without looking behind, he flitted out the gate as a shadow, and the time he made down the alley was not taken, but Beuzetta could not have touched it. Well, we were never very much on the sprint, but the warming up heat we trotted in his wake was sufficient to induce us to retire from the turf for all time.

We were laying for larger game and the appearance of so small a thief rather upset the plan of campaign and our grand strategy failed utterly. But we had chicken for dinner Thursday, which might not have happened had we not been on hand to defend the remaining occupants of the coop.

Aaron Smith.

Aaron Smith, a highly esteemed and respectable colored citizen of this place, died after a few hours, illness at the home of his daughter, Tuesday night. The many friends of this worthy man were greatly shocked at the sad intelligence, as his illness was known to very few outside of his immediate family. He was a resident of this city for many years, in fact, during the greater part of his life, and by his quiet, unobtrusive demeanor, together with his honesty of purpose and faithfulness as a skilled workman in his trade of a carpenter, he secured and held the good will and friendship of many of our best citizens. Although not a member of any church, he has been for a number of years a regular attendant and worshiper at the First Presbyterian Church.

His place there was seldom vacant and he was a regular and liberal contributor to the church. The funeral services, which took place from the above church Thursday afternoon, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Blayney, and the large attendance of friends attested the esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes of our citizens.

Her First Defeat.

Beuzetta, Mr. Ed. W. Ayres' fast trotting mare, met with her first defeat at New York Wednesday. In the free for all at Fleetwood Park, for a purse of five thousand dollars, Azote won in three straight heats, Beuzetta coming second. Time: 2:09 1/4.

2:05 1/4 and 2:07 1/4. After the second heat Mr. Ayres sold Beuzetta for $16,000 to a broker for some unknown party.

To Drill at Paris.

The McCreary Guards will go to Paris on Wednesday of next week and give an exhibition drill at the fair.

Country Fires.

The saw-mill upon the farm of Mr. A. H. Waggoner, on the Devil's Hollow pike, was destroyed by fire Friday night. The loss is total as there was no insurance.

The school-house in the Walcutt district, on the Glens Creek pike, was burned Monday morning early. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin. Partly insured.

Running For the Legislature.

Mr. George D. Todd, formerly of this city, has been nominated by the Republican party as a candidate to represent one of the Senatorial districts of Louisville in the next Legislature. Capt. C. S. Dodson, the well-known former conductor on the L. & N. Railroad and resident of this city, is also a candidate of the same party to represent one of the Legislative districts of Louisville in the next House of Representatives.

Nearly Drowned.

The Beatyville Enterprise of last week contains the following:

Last Sunday Mr. A. S. Roberts, formerly of Lexington but now of Frankfort, made a narrow escape from drowning while bathing in the Kentucky river at this place. He and several friends were bathing in the deep water just back of the mill, when Mr. Roberts, who is an expert swimmer, started across the river. He reached the far side in safety and after a minute's rest plunged in to return to the boom, when he had gotten about twenty feet from bank he was seized with the cramps, which rendered him utterly helpless, and had it not been for the large rock in the river at that point he would have surely drowned. Boge Cain displayed his presence of mind by jumping into a boat and pulled for dear life for the rock to which Mr. Roberts was clinging. He and several good swimmers reached the spot about the same time and the young man was safely escorted in the boat. Mr. Rob. its exhibited great coolness and good judgment by merely holding to the rock and making no effort to swim out as he would have drowned, the water being very deep at that point. This should be a warning to all to be careful while bathing in deep water, for at any time you are liable to cramp in a like manner.

Council Proceedings.

The Council met Tuesday night in regular session at 7:30 o'clock, with Mayor Julian presiding, and eight councilmen present, viz: Messrs. Fortune, Marshall, Crutcher, Sower, Ellwanger, Fuhs, Haly, and Williams.

Consideration of a petition of citizens for arc light at corner of Todd and Steele streets, to be removed from Ewing street, was postponed until next meeting. The petition of citizens on north St. Clair street for more light was referred to special committee on light. The petition of Judge W. G. Bullitt to reduce his assessment $1,000 was referred to the finance committee.

The report of the street committee adversely on petition of Mr. Brightwell to build a stable on East Main street was accepted and filed.

The report to special committee on petition of Mrs. Nesbitt, for damages of $1,000 caused by fall on North Wilkerson street was presented to Council in unsettled condition. Mr. James A. Scott appeared before the Council in behalf of Mrs. Nesbitt, and, at the request of the Councilman Fortune, Mr. Scott stated the case of his client to Council, and suggested a compromise, after which the report of the committee was accepted and committee discharged. As there was nothing further before the Council it adjourned until next regular meeting.

MR. DARSIE ABROAD.

Great Britain and Home.

(From the Christian Guide.)

This is my last letter, and in a very general way I desire to run over what remains of my long journey. It was easy to make half a dozen letters of what I saw during the ten days I roamed through London, Edinburgh and other parts of the British Isles, but I must not further tax my kind readers' patience.

The Congregationalist's Party with which I set out, in which I found so cordial a welcome, and of which I shall always have a most delightful recollection, broke up at Vienna. A few of us still clung together at Paris, but when I boarded the train for England I was alone. It seemed quite strange to me to cross the channel in a steamer where I did not know a single soul and to find myself engineering my own baggage through the custom house, and taking upon myself all the responsibility of a traveler. "Personally conducted tours" are pleasant in many ways, but proceeding upon the basis of a man's inability to look out for himself, they are not calculated to develop in him to any remarkable degree a quality of manly self-reliance. To speak out frankly, I found myself in many instances chafing at restraints such a tour imposed and inwardly resolving for my future travels in foreign lands, if such good fortune awaits me, to paddle my own canoe.

It was a great satisfaction to be again in the land where my good mother tongue was spoken, and where the bother of guides and interpreters was unnecessary. But I must modify this remark enough to say that an Englishman's English and an American's English are by no means identical. The differences of pronunciation and intonation, not to speak of idioms and construction, are sufficient to require each to say over his words to the other about twice, on an average, before they are fully comprehended. I am far from being an Anglo-maniac, but I confess that my admiration for old England has been greatly increased by what I have seen of her on this journey. My heart warms to her flag and her people as never before. The moment I touched her soil I felt at home and during my entire stay I felt to say continually "this is indeed my mother-country."

To tell the exact truth, there was no city in all my travels abroad which so attracted and charmed me as London did. As a city of sacred associations of course Jerusalem is beyond every other city. But as the repository of modern life and history, as in many respects the center of the world, as in truth a world in and of itself, London has more to interest, to inspire and instruct than any other and all other cities I have seen abroad. It was a fitting climax to see it last, though one can hardly be said to have really seen London in six days. But for the matter of that he could not exhaust the sights in six weeks, six months or even six years.

My hotel was the Westminster, almost directly across from the great Abbey, and five minutes or less from the Parliament House. No spot on earth contains the dust and publishes the fame of so many of the great and good of this world as Westminster Abbey. As alone with my Baedeker I threaded its aisles, passing from one grave or monument to another, I said to myself, "this is an experience in my life that cannot ever be duplicated." When I reached the grave of David Livingstone, the inscription on it seemed to me so fine that at once I began to copy it. Here it is: "Brought by faith full hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist, born March 19th, 1813, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire, died May 1, 1883, at Chitamba's Village, Ulala. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearying effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secret, to abolish the desolating slave trade of Central Africa, where with his last words he wrote, 'All I can add in my solitude is, may heaven's rich blessing come down on every one, American, English or Turk, who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'" As I was writing a stranger accosted me with a remark about the interesting character of the grave, to which I responded affirmatively, of course, but without looking up or ceasing to write. Again he addressed me saying how strange that anybody could doubt the identification of Livingstone's body when it was absolutely settled by a certain mark on it which he named. Scarcely looking up from my writing, even then I said that I had never thought of doubting it myself and with him, did not see how any one else could. I am sorry now that I did not cease my writing and give him all my attention as he spoke, for when he had left me a moment later a gentleman said to me, "Do you know who it was that was talking to you?" I said "No." "Well," he replied, "it was the Dean of Westminster, and if you had given him any encouragement he would have shown you over the entire Abbey." You may imagine how I felt at such a lost opportunity.

There was only one other inscription I copied, it was written by Tennyson. It stands beneath the monument of Sir John Franklin, and it reads:

Not here the white North has thy home;
And thou, heroic sailor-soul, art
Passing on thine happier voyage
Now toward no earthly pole.

And I scarce knew which of these two heroic Englishmen to admire the most.

It was my privilege to attend a Sunday afternoon service in Westminster Abbey and to hear a sermon there by Canon Wilberforce. The great edifice was crowded—seats and aisles—but by no portion of the great audience was I so impressed as by the voice of the canon, the immortal dead, who by their statutes, busts, tablets and other monuments around on all sides, seemed to me as real a portion of the Canon's hearers as the living throng who sat and stood about me.

London in every part is simply alive with monuments. Go where you will, they meet you. The English allow no great deed or man to go unperpetuated. And I can not see how a young man could grow up in this great city and not be stimulated every day of his life to noble things by these mute reminders of the heroic past. I confess that during my stay in the city my heart was constantly thrilled by them. Nor was I less interested in noting evidences of the religious and reverent spirit of the English people. In the center of the great Parliament House I traced a mosaic in the floor which in Latin says, "Except the Lord build the House, they labor in vain to build it." On the front of a great stone building with Corinthian columns as its imposing entrance, I read the words, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." I thought it must be a church and so asked a boy who was passing what church it was. He snickered and said, "O that is not a church at all; that's the Royal Exchange." I thought to myself, "well, if these moneyed magnates feel that way about their money and other possessions, they are a very different set of men from ours across the sea." I really believe that England as a nation feels the Lord. And I was everywhere impressed by the spirit of reverence I found in every church I entered. The people came in quietly, bowed their heads in prayer or taking their seats (whether Conformist or Non conformist), remained to the end of the service, continuing in silent prayer even after the benediction had been pronounced; and then instead of rushing out pell mell, went out slowly and gradually, two or three at a time, as though loath to leave the place. I would that the Americans could learn and practice a similar spirit.

There is no need of telling of my visit to the Tower, to St. Paul's, to Hyde Park, to the various museums, and all that. It has been so often told. But I must confirm the testimony of others who have said that the best way to see London is from the top of an omnibus, with the driver as your guide. And I must correct any "traveller from New Zealand," who should now attempt "to take his stand on an arch of London bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul," by informing him that Macaulay's famous sentence has been rendered inapplicable through the erection of a mammoth railroad station which effectually conceals the great cathedral from those who cross the bridge.

But I must leave the great metropolis for another famous city, 400 miles to the north.

For many things is Edinburgh noted, and the tourist who passes it by misses next to London the most interesting city in Great Britain. But just how to me the most interesting fact about Edinburgh is that it was the birthplace of my father. Anstruther Easter, forty miles or more to the north-east of Edinburgh, situated a little beyond the mouth of the Firth of Forth, and looking out on the beautiful waters of the North Sea, was the ancestral home of my people. I took a day to run up and see the little fishing city, to visit my kindred of the Darsie name still resident there, and to walk through the old stone house where my grandfather lived, and where all his children who preceded my father were born. In Anstruther for many generations the Darsies had dwelt. The removal of our branch of the family to Edinburgh, was presumably the first step in the subsequent migration to America, whither the family came when my father was a babe in arms. It was a new experience for me to look upon the rock whence I was hewn, or the pit whence I was dug, so to speak. If anybody has found me a little stubborn at times, or inclined to think my own think, or say my own say, they will now be able to put the blame where it properly belongs—on the fact that my people came from the rugged coasts of old Scotland! And I am now inclined to feel ever sturdier than ever since I saw the place I came from—it seems to demand it of me!

But I must hurry back to Edinburgh, not indeed to describe the city, but to take a train the next morning for Stirling Castle, the Trossachs and Glasgow, at which last named place I brought up in the evening, after a most eventful day of sight-seeing. The half can not be told of the beauty of Loch Katrine and Loch Lomond, over which we steamed, or of the wild mountain scenery through which we staged, or of the many famous legends, preserved in poetry, and romance, concerning the days of Rob Roy, Robert Bruce and Sir William Wallace, which were brought afresh to mind by many things I saw in that day's excursion. We returned to Edinburgh that same night, only to leave it for good the next afternoon in order to visit Melrose Abbey (the most beautiful ruin in Great Britain), and Abbotsford (the home of Sir Walter Scott). I say "we," for Dr. George E. Hall, of Dover, N. H., a genial member of the Congregationalist's party, had now joined me, and we had been "doing" Scotland together.

But now we are returning to London. On the way we are delayed at Carlisle for four hours, and while there, at midnight, a long train of sleeping coaches puffs into our station and we are strangely commanded to stay inside the waiting room. We soon learn the reason. The good Queen of England is in the train now at the station, on her way from Balmoral to Windsor, because a crisis in the government is on; Lord Rosebery has resigned, and Lord Salisbury is about to take the helm. We did not quite see the Queen, but we saw the car she was in!

Daybreak finds us back in London. Wednesday, June 26 I am aboard the steamer Traue of the North German Lloyd line, and eight days later, on July 4, at 11 a. m., I set foot again on my native soil. Friday evening, July 5, finds me at home in Frankfort, Ky., the most glad and thankful man alive. Eighteen thousand five hundred miles without an accident and almost without a mishap is the record. Our Burg was very well represented at the Teachers' Institute in Frankfort last week.
The concert held in Frankfort Thursday night, of last week for the benefit of the Franklin County Teachers' Library, though not as well attended as it deserved, was beyond all controversy an artistic treat of rare occurrence. Miss Mary Pattie, of Richmond, Ky., and Master George Smith, of Cincinnati, each contributing to the occasion, should have been an advertisement sufficient to insure a full house, consequently those who did not attend are the losers. Why the citizens of our Capital City should be so derelict in a duty so closely allied to their every interest is a question not easily solved, when we consider the fact that a sum probably not far short of $10,000 is annually expended by the teachers of the county within the limits of the city, which sum of course greatly enhances her commercial value. The teachers of the county return many thanks to the few who did contribute to the above worthy enterprise.
Miss Katie Stuber, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Mrs. Virgie Featherston.
Misses Effie Warren and Mamie Gallahue, accompanied by Messrs. Russel Hughes and Wallace McCloy, of Frankfort, attended worship at Stamping Ground last Sunday night.

Gault home. Outside of a few punctures they traveled through some of the prettiest parts of the State, and over some of the best roads known to wheelmen.
